E449
.P544

A Commemorative Discourse

Permalife®
pH 8.5

23
3647 P

Price Ten Cents.

E 449
.P544
Copy 1

Wendell Phillips:

A Commemorative Discourse.

BY

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

[With Portrait of Mr. Phillips.]

Delivered at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, Sunday Morning, February 10th 1884, and issued as No. 20, Volume VII, of "Plymouth Pulpit," (the Weekly Pamphlet Edition of Mr. Beecher's Current Sermons.

NEW YORK:
FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT.
1884.

Plymouth Pulpit.

This is the only regular publication of Mr. Beecher's current sermons, the only one authorized by him, and for the correctness of which he consents to be responsible,—the reports being furnished by Mr. T. J. Ellinwood, for some twenty-five years the special reporter of his Sermons and Lecture Room Talks

Vol. Completed April 4.

1. The Golden Net.
2. They Have their Reward.
3. The Personal Influence of God.
4. The Principle of Spiritual Growth.
5. Christian Pantheism.
6. The Marrow of the Gospel.
7. The Kingdom of Heaven.
8. The Turning Point.
9. Old Thoughts in New Forms.
10. Brain Life in America.
11. The Secret of Beauty.
12. Conceptions of God.
13. God in Christ.
14. A Completed Year.
15. The Reproach of Christ.
16. The Vital Principle.
17. Many Members, One Body.
18. Christ's Idea of Christianity.
19. Why Christ Died.
20. Civil Law and the Sabbath.
21. Ashamed of Christ.
22. The Enthusiasm of Love.
23. Soul Service.
24. Heart-Fragrance.
25. A Helpful God.
26. The Courage of the Future.

Vol. Completed Oct. 3.

1. The Light of Life.
2. The Drift of the Ages.
3. Aim of the Christian Life.
4. Generosity towards God.
5. The Liberty of Christ.
6. The Rest of God.
7. Does God Exist?
8. The Hidden Man.
9. Seekers after Evil.
10. God in the World.
11. God's Goodness Man's Salvation
12. Poverty and the Gospel.
13. The God of the Whole Earth.
14. Intimacy with God.
15. The Value of Suffering.
16. The Test of Christianity.
17. What is the Bible?
18. Critical Hours.
19. Aims of Life.
20. Negative Evil, Positive Good.
21. Sluggish Christianity.
22. Faith in Time of Trouble.
23. Christ First.
24. The Secret of Reforms.
25. The Crisis of Decision.
26. Aspiration and Contentment.

SUBJECTS OF CURRENT VOLUME.

1. The Sun of Righteousness.
2. The Battle of Life.
3. Nature's Warning.
4. God's Loving Providence.
5. Symbols of God.
6. Wealth Toward God.
7. The Science of Right Living.
8. Living Gospels.
9. The Heroism of Life.
10. Selfness versus Selfishness.
11. Unity in Diversity.
12. Ch'n Conscience and Ch'n Liberty
13. Concerning Godlikeness.
14. The Old Year, and the New.
15. An Outlook.
16. Christ, the Foundation.
17. The Vitality of God's Truth
18. The Pulpit of To-day.
19. Outward and Inward Life.
20. Wendell Phillips.
21.
22.
23.
24.
25.
26.

TERMS.—Single numbers, 7 cents. Yearly subscriptions, $2, giving two volumes of above 500 pages each. Half-yearly subscription, $1.25.

To Clergymen and Theological Students, yearly, $1.70; Half-yearly, 90 cents. Subscriptions may begin with any number.

Those who wish to take both Plymouth Pulpit and The Christian Union can do so by sending Fords, Howard, & Hulbert a check, draft, or Postal money order for $4, (the aggregate price of the two separately being $5*). To clergymen and Theological Students,* $3.50.

N. B. To those who wish to preserve the pamphlets, in book form, the Publishers will mail a neat Self-Binder on receipt of price, as follows: Cloth, 50 cents; Half Russia, 90 cents.

Copyright, 1884, Fords, Howard, & Hulbert.

Entered at the New York Post Office as Second-Class Mail Matter.

Special to Plymouth Pulpit Subscribers.

The publishers would make a friendly appeal to the Subscribers for this weekly record of Mr. BEECHER's Sermons, to give—each one of them—a trifling effort to enlarge its number of readers the ensuing year.

In order to offer some special inducement to Subscribers, or to friends who have not yet subscribed to Plymouth Pulpit, but who know the value and charm of Mr. BEECHER's teachings, we will send any of the following named books of his, post-paid, on receipt of the subscription-addresses and money as named :—

For One RENEWAL and One NEW SUBSCRIPTION (or Two NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS) $4·

LIFE THOUGHTS. Brief passages of interest and beauty, written down from extemporaneous Sermons, Prayers, Lecture-Room Talks, etc., by EDNA DEAN PROCTOR. (Regular Price, Cloth, $1.25;) or,

SERMONS. Preached in Plymouth Church, 1873–1874. ELLINWOOD'S REPORTS. 1 vol., 600 pages. (Regular Price, Cloth, $1.50;) or,

SERMONS. The New Volume, October, 1882–April, 1883, or the Latest Volume, April October, 1883. (Each, Regular Price, Cloth, $1.50;.)

"Few sermons ever had the vitality that Mr. Beecher's have. . . . And it is never the voice of the Scribe or the Pharisee, but always a word from some inner consciousness or the honest utterance of conviction or experience . . . a true voicing of the religious tendencies of these generations."—Philadelphia Times.

For One RENEWAL and Two NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS (or Three NEW SUBSCRIPTIONS) $6;

NORWOOD; or Village Life in New England. A Novel. (New Edition.) Illustrated. (Regular Price, Cloth, $2.)

"Embodies more of the high art of fiction than any half dozen of the best novels of the best authors of the day. It will bear to be read and re-read as often as Dickens' 'Dombey' or 'David Copperfield.'"—Albany Evening Journal.

"Hawthorne excepted, Mr. Beecher has brought more of the New England soul to the surface than any of our American professed writers of fiction."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Or, YALE LECTURES ON PREACHING. I. PERSONAL ELEMENTS which bear an important relation to preaching; II. SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS MACHINERY of the Church; III. CHRISTIAN DOCTRINES—Methods of using them. 33 Lectures, 960 Pages, Vellum Cloth binding. (New Edition.) 3 vols. in one. (Regular Price, $2.)

"Characteristically sagacious, sensible, earnest, brilliant, witty and wise."—Chicago Advance, Congregational.

"Many of the sources of his extraordinary power are clearly set forth in these characteristic lectures."—New York Observer, Presbyterian.

"Every theological student, every young minister, Bible-class teacher, and laborer in mission-work will be profited by the study of this thoughtful and interesting book."—The Episcopalian (Phila.)

FORDS, HOWARD, AND HULBERT, 27 Park Place, N. Y.

"Well deserving the attention of those who are philanthropists in fact as well as in theory."—THE AMERICAN, Philadelphia.

THE PROBLEM OF THE POOR:

A Record of Quiet Work in Unquiet Places,

By HELEN CAMPBELL,

Author of "The Easiest Way in Housekeeping and Cooking," "Patty Pearson's Boy," "Under Green Apple-Boughs," etc., etc.

16mo, Cloth, 90 Cents.

"Gives a most interesting account of the 'Jerry McAuley Mission' in the Five Points of New York, including many thrilling personal narratives, and several chapters of clear, practical advice about real methods of helping the poor of our great cities to rise in their scale of living, especially in matters of Diet in its relation to Drunkenness and Disease. The book is both attractive, interesting, and of marked value in its unpretending contribution to the work of cleansing the sources from which come the great volume of our criminals—and our voters."—San Francisco Alta-California.

"Has the charm which comes from the relation of an unusual individual experience. It presents the results of a close inspection of the conditions of the very poorest poor, in their abiding places: and when it has uncovered the unpleasant, and sometimes even loathsome, mass of wretchedness, it undertakes to indicate the lines upon which improvement may be effected."—Philadelphia American.

"An irresistible blending of the humorous and the pathetic."—Hartford Times.

"Worthy of earnest thought."—Chicago Tribune.

"Mrs. Campbell has investigated this most pressing of all our problems in a spirit of helpful sympathy, and sets forth the result of her inquiries by a method that is dramatic in its interest.

"Unpretentious, but deals thoughtfully with a question destined to grow to ominous dimensions with the growth of our population."—St. Paul's Pioneer Press.

"This little volume simply presents facts which make one shiver. The imagination of a Dickens or a Zola never conceived such depths of misery and vice as these pictures of real life portray. . . She urges better tenement houses for the poor, rightly judging that clean dwellings will induce self-respect. She says, "cooks are the missionaries needed,' and shows how food of poor quality, even if it be sufficient in quantity, fails to satisfy the demands of nature and generates a desire for liquor."—Boston Globe.

"This little book has a value beyond its excellent literary character, as being a practical, clear-sighted putting of a terrible problem and its possible solution."—The Continent.

"Regarding shop-girls, Mrs. Campbell says: 'If every decent family, instead of paying wages to an army that wastes and devours, would be willing to take a young girl and teach her patiently, there would soon be small trouble about servants, and the girl would be saved from ruin of body and soul.' The book is earnest, interesting and sensible."—Boston Globe.

"Abounds in thrilling scenes and experiences among the poor."—Independent.

"The author's experience in practical working among the poor, aided by her excellent common sense, enables her to bring forward many helpful suggestions which can be utilized in almost any city of our land."—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

"Worthy of careful and close reading."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"Not many can read this little book without a strong desire to do something toward the relief of the problem so graphically set forth."—St. Paul Dispatch.

"Calculated to incite some grave thinking over the duty each person owes to unfortunate humanity, and how that duty shall be most wisely performed. . . . The writer makes no set appeal for sympathy and co-operation, but safely trusts to the effect of her vivid transcription of the work of the mission. It is a harrowing and yet an encouraging record, for it shows that men may be rescued from the lowest depths of degradation provided the right means be employed."—The Dial, Chicago.

"Suggestive, helpful, earnest and convincing."—New York Christian Intelligencer.

 Sold by all Booksellers, or will be mailed, postpaid, on receipt of price (90 cents) by the Publishers,

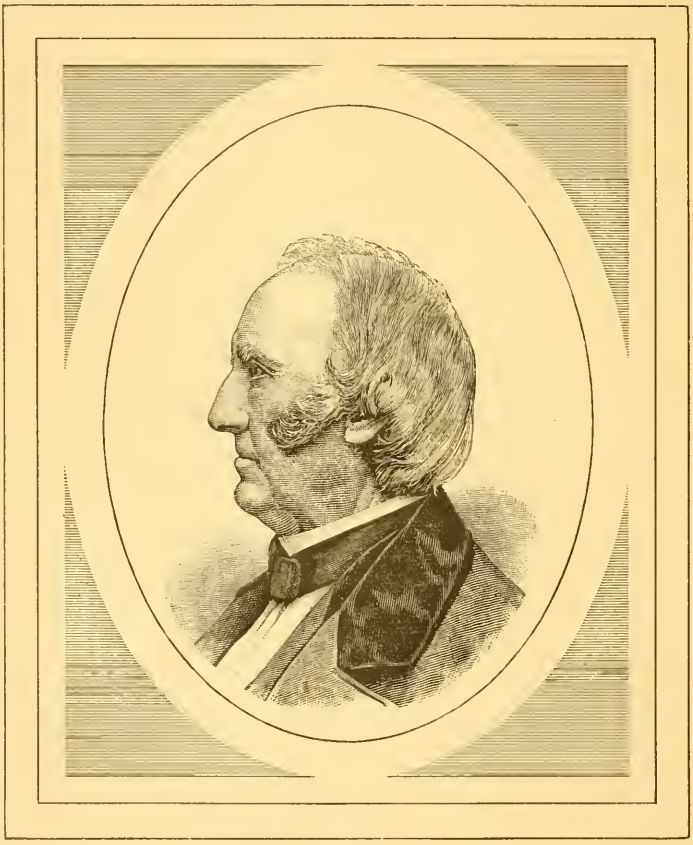
FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT,

Publishers, 27 Park Place, New York.



Wm Lloyd Phillips

Wendell Phillips.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor, the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him, and keep him alive; and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies."—Psalm xli: 1, 2.

It was on last Wednesday that, standing upon the steps of the Parker House, Boston, in School Street, my attention was arrested by a procession. As they came up, I saw a soldierly body of colored men with muskets reversed, the silent band following, with officers' corps behind it, their swords reversed, and then the carriages, following the hearse that bore—dust to dust—all that remained on earth of Wendell Phillips. The streets could not hold the crowd, and he whom the mob had sought once and again to tear to pieces now drew tears on every side from the mob, and the obsequious city sought to make up its vulgar scorn of other days by its worshipful attention.

It is respecting this man and his times that I shall, very briefly and imperfectly, speak this morning.

Fifty years ago, during my college life, I was chosen by the Athenian Society to debate the question of African Colonization, which then was new, fresh and enthusiastic. Garrison was then just kindling into that fire-brand, a brand of fire that never went out until slavery was consumed. Wendell Phillips, a young lawyer, had just begun his career. Fortunately, I was assigned to the negative side of the question, and in preparing to speak I prepared my whole life. I contended against colonization as a condition of emancipation,—enforced colonization was but little better than enforced slavery,—and advocated immediate emancipation on the broad ground of human rights. I knew but very little then, but I knew this, that all men are designed of God to be free, a fact which ought to be the text of every man's life—this sacredness of humanity as given of God, redeemed from animalism by Jesus Christ, crowned and clothed with rights that no law nor oppression should dare touch.

Sunday Morning, Feb. 10, 1884. Lesson: Jno. xviii: 19-40. Hymns (Plymouth Collection): Nos. 199, 1020, 1040.

Nearly two generations have passed since then; the young men who are marching now from youth to manhood are little acquainted with the men or movements of those days, but a few gray heads are left that can recall all these scenes. It has been said that men are more ignorant of that part of history which immediately precedes their own lives, than of any other. Let us, therefore, throw some little light upon the history of those days that immediately precede our own.

At the beginning, in the history of this people, Slavery was the accident: it was introduced at a time before the world's eyes had been opened; it came in, indeed, under the cover of benevolence; it had not attained a very great estate for many years; and yet, in the days of its infancy, it so conflicted with the fundamental ideas on which our institutions and laws were based, that the Northern States got rid of it. Because the climate and husbandry were not favorable to it in the Northern States, they were helped to do it; but the spirit of liberty had taken on the moral element in New England, in New York, and in Pennsylvania; and so it was soon extinguished. In the South it became a very important industrial element. Rice, sugar, cotton were the trinity that dominated the industry of the South, and slave labor was favorable to this simple industry. It became, therefore, a pecuniary interest to the South, as it never was in the North. After a time the industry became so important that, although throughout all the South in the earlier days, men recognized slavery as a sin, and its existence as a great misfortune, and always hoped that the day would speedily come for emancipation; yet all those hopes and expectations were met and resisted and overthrown by the fact that slavery became a political interest. It became the center which united every Southern State with every other, and gave unity to the party of the South; so that political reasons, rooted in pecuniary reasons, gave great strength to slavery and its propagandism in the South. The North emancipated; the South fortified.

It has been said a thousand times, and every time falsely (it was said by one of the most eloquent sons of the South a few months ago in Cooper Union, where I presided, but it was not the time nor a fitting place to expose the misstatement), it has been said that the North sold out, and having realized on their slaves invested in liberty as a better paying stock.

This statement is absolutely untrue. It has no historical verity in Massachusetts. There, to some slight extent, slavery existed as it did not in Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine, but died by a very simple legal decision, one case having been brought into the courts, and the courts determining that it was inconsistent with the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution sequent; and the man stood free. After that there was no enactment; nothing. Slavery perished of itself by that one single decision.

In New York a bill was passed early for the gradual emancipation of slaves, and it was guarded in every way. On attaining a certain age they were to become free; up to that age they were the property of their masters, upon whom the responsibility of their support still rested with full weight. After a trial of some years it was considered a great deal better to be rid of the evil at once, and subsequent legislation determined immediate emancipation. Now, as against those that falsely accused the integrity and love of liberty of this great State, let me say that if you will go back to the laws, and to the practice under them, you shall find that with the declaration of emancipation, both the primitive form of it and the subsequent form of it, the right of the slave or of the coming freedman was guaranteed, and his safety.

No man was permitted to take a slave out of the State of New York without giving bond for his return, and if he came back without his slave, unless he could prove that the slave had died, he was himself made a criminal, and subjected to criminal punishment; and there is reason to believe, in regard to the most of the comparatively few slaves that were in the State of New York, that their emancipation was a bona fide emancipation, and they never were sold South.

Now and then a man can steal a horse; but we should not lay to the State from which it was taken the charge of abetting theft. There may have been single men or women spirited away; there may have been thieving; I know of none, I have heard of none, though there may have been; but whatever the statute could do to maintain the slave in his integrity and liberty was done, and substantially and generally it was effectual; and all this cheap wash of wild declamation that we hear going through the land, to the effect that the North sold out its slaves and then went into the business of emancipation, is simply false.

The condition of the public mind throughout the North at the time that I came to the consciousness of public affairs, and was studying my profession, may be described in one word, as the condition of imprisoned moral sense. All men, almost, agreed together in saying that "Slavery is wrong; but what can we do?" The compromise of our fathers included us; and fidelity to the agreements that had been made in the formation of our Constitution, of our Confederation first, and of our Constitution afterwards, was regarded everywhere as a moral obligation by men that hated slavery. "The compromises of the Constitution must be respected," said the priest in the pulpit, said the politician in the field, said the statesman in public hall; and men abroad, in England especially, could not understand what was the reason of the later hesitancy of President Lincoln, and of the people, when they had risen to arms, in declaring at once the emancipation of the slaves. There never has been in history an instance more notable in which, I think, the feelings and the moral sense of so large a number of people have been held in check for reasons of fidelity to obligations assumed in their behalf; and I am bound to say that with all its faults and weaknesses there has never been an instance more noble. That being the underlying moral element, the commercial question in the North very soon became, on the subject of slavery, what the industrial and political questions of the South had made it. It corrupted the manufacturer and the merchant. Throughout the whole North every man that could make anything by it regarded the South as his legal, lawful market; for the South did not manufacture. They had the cheap and vulgar husbandry of slavery. They could make more money with cotton than with corn or beef, or pork, or leather, or hats, or woodenware. Our Northern ships went South to get their forest timbers, and brought them to Connecticut to be made into wooden ware, and axe helves, and rake handles, and carried them right back to sell to the men whose axes had cut down the trees.

The South manufactured nothing except slaves; it was a great manufacture, that; and the whole market of the North was bribed. The harness makers, the wagon makers, the clock makers, makers of all manner of implements and goods, were subject to this bribery. Every manufactory, every loom as it clanked in the North, said: "Maintain not slavery, but the compromises of the Constitution," for that was the veil under which all these cries were continually uttered.

The distinction between the Anti-slavery men and Abolitionists was simply this: the Abolitionist disclaimed the obligation to maintain this Government and the promise of the Constitution; the Anti-slavery man recognized the binding obligation of the Constitution, and sought the emancipation of slaves by a more circuitous and gradual influence: but Abolitionism covered both terms. It was regarded, however, throughout the North as a greater sin than Slavery itself; and none of you that are under thirty years of age can form an adequate conception of the public sentiment and feeling during the days of my young manhood. A man that was known to be an Abolitionist had better be known to have the plague. Every door was shut to him. If he was born under circumstances that admitted him to the best society, he was the black sheep of the family. If he aspired, by fidelity, industry and genius, to good society, he was debarred. "An Abolitionist" was enough to put the mark of Cain upon any young man that arose in my early day, and until I was forty years of age, it was punishable to preach on the subject of liberty. It was enough to expel a man from church communion if he insisted on praying in the prayer-meeting for the liberation of the slaves. I am speaking the words of truth and soberness. The Church was dumb in the North, but not in the West. A marked distinction exists between the history of the new school of Presbyterian churches in the West and the Congregational churches, the Episcopal churches, the Methodist and Baptist churches in the North and East. The great publishing societies that were sustained by the contributions of the churches were absolutely dumb. Great controversies raged round about the doors of the Bible Society, of the Tract Society and of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. The managers of these societies resorted to every shift except that of sending the gospel to the slaves. They would not send the Bible to the South; for, they said, "It is a punishable offence in most of the Southern States to teach a slave to read; and are we to go in the face of this State legislation and send the Bible South?" The Tract Society said: "We are set up to preach the gospel, not to meddle with political and industrial institutions." And so they went on printing tracts against tobacco and its uses, tracts against dancing and its abuses, and refusing to print a tract that had a shadow of criticism on slavery!

One of the most disgraceful things took place under the jurisdiction of Bishop Doane, of New Jersey,—I take it for granted, without his knowledge. I have the book. It was an edition of the Episcopal prayer-book. They had put into the front of it a steel engraving of Ary Scheffer's "Christus Consolator,"—Christ the Consoler. There was a semicircle around about the beneficent and aerial figure of our Saviour,—the poor, the old, the sick, the mother with her dead babe, bowed in grief; every known form of human sorrow belonged to the original design and picture; and among others a fettered slave, with his hands lifted to heaven praying for liberty: but this was too much; and so they cut out the slave, and left the rest of the picture, and bound it into the Episcopal prayer-book of New Jersey. I have a copy of it, which I mean to leave to the Historical Society of Brooklyn when I am done using it.

These things are important as showing the incredible condition of public sentiment at that time. If a man came known to be an anti-slavery man it almost preluded bankruptcy in business.

You remember, some of you, the black list that was framed and sent all over the South, of men that were suspected of being Abolitionists in New York city. The South undertook to boycott the whole North. Then it was that I drew up the sentence for a then member of this church, "I have goods for sale, but not principles." Resistance was a blight to all political hope. No man could have the slightest expectation of rising in politics that did not bow the knee to Baal. A derisive laugh was the only answer with which exhortations to nobility and manhood were received. This public sentiment was worse in the North than it was anywhere else, and in the Northeast worse than in the West, on account of the extent of manufacturing and commerce here.

When I came to Brooklyn I was exhorted not to meddle with so unpopular a subject. "What is the use?" was said to me by a venerable master in Israel; "why should you lose your influence? Why don't you go on and preach the gospel?" to which I replied, "I don't know any gospel of that kind. My gospel has in it the breaking of prison bars and shackles, the bringing forth of prisoners, and if I can't preach that I won't preach at all." The very first sermon that I ever preached before this congregation —or rather, the congregation that met me—was the declaration of my principles on temperance, on peace and war, and above all, on the subject of slavery. For years and years just prior to the renting of the pews, I came out like thunder on the subject of slavery; for I told my people that they need not think that they could dine me out of my principles, nor smooth me out of them, nor in any way make the pews an argument to me of prudence in the matter of principle.

The church rose steadily, in spite of the abolitionism of the pastor. Yet, if a colored man at that time had come into the church he would have been an object of observation, and the cause of some grumbling, though not of revolt in this church, thank God. There never has been a day since I became the pastor of Plymouth Church that a cleanly-dressed respectable colored man or woman could not have come in and taken a seat here. It would have excited among a great many a good deal of trouble; but this congregation has been of that mind, and never the result of my undertaking to enforce it. I never preached on that subject. I never said to the people in this congregation, from the beginning to this day, "You ought to let colored folks sit in your pew." I preached the dignity of man as a child of God; and lifted up the sanctity of human life and nature before the people. They made the application, and they made it wisely and well.

When I came here there was no place for colored men and women in the theater except the negro pen; no place in the opera; no place in the church except the negro pew; no place in any lecture hall; no place in the first-class car on the railways. The white omnibus of Fulton Ferry would not allow colored persons to ride in it. They were never allowed to sit even in the gentlemen's cabin on the boats.

I invited Fred. Douglass, one day, in those times, to come to church here. "I should be glad to, sir," said he; "but it would be so offensive to your congregation." "Mr. Douglass, will you come? and if any man objects to it, come up and sit on my platform by me. You will always be welcome there."

I mention these things simply to show what was the state of feeling that existed everywhere twenty-five or thirty years ago. Existed! Swept through the land as a sultry sirocco sweeps through the desert, scorching and blasting public sentiment.

It was at the beginning of this Egyptian era in America that the young aristocrat of Boston appeared. His blood came through the best colonial families. He was an aristocrat by descent and by nature—a noble one, but a thorough aristocrat. All his life and power assumed that guise. He was noble, he was full of kindness to inferiors, he was willing to be and do and suffer for them; but he was never of them, nor did he ever equal himself to them. He was always above them; and his gifts of love were always the gifts of a prince to his subjects. All his life long he resented every attack on his person and on his honor as a noble aristocrat would. When they poured the filth of their imaginations upon him, he cared no more for it than the eagle cares what the fly is thinking about him away down under the cloud. All the miserable traffickers, all the scribblers and all the aristocratic boobies of Boston were no more to him than mosquitos are to the behemoth or to the lion. He was aristocratic in his pride, and lived higher than most men lived. He was called of God as truly as ever Moses and the Prophets were: not exactly for the same great ends, but in consonance with those great ends.

The elder ones remember when Lovejoy was infamously slaughtered by a mob in Alton, and blood was shed that has been the seed of liberty all over this land. I remember it. At this time, it was, that Channing lifted up his voice, and declared that the moral sentiment of Boston ought to be uttered in rebuke of that infamy and cruelty, and asked for Faneuil Hall in which to call a public meeting. This was indignantly refused by the Common Council of Boston. Being a man of wide influence, he gathered around about himself enough venerable and influential old citizens of that city to make a denial of their united request a perilous thing; and Faneuil Hall was granted to call a public meeting to express itself on this subject of the murder of Lovejoy. The meeting was made up largely of rowdies. They meant to overawe and put down all other expressions of opinion except those that then rioted with the riotous. United States District Attorney Austin (when Wendell Phillips' name is written in letters of light on one side of the monument, down low on the other side, and spattered with dirt, let the name of Austin also be written) made a truculent speech, and justified the mob, and ran the whole career of the sewer of those days, and justified non-interference with slavery. Wendell Phillips, just come to town as a young lawyer without at present any practice, practically unknown except to his own family, fired with the infamy, and feeling called of God in his soul, went upon the platform. His first utterances brought down the hisses of the mob. He was not a man very easily subdued by any mob. They listened as he kindled and poured on that man Austin the fire and lava of a volcano; and he finally turned the course of the feeling of the meeting. Practically unknown when the sun went down one day, when it rose the next morning all Boston was saying, "Who is this fellow? who is this Phillips?"—a question that has never been asked since!

Thenceforth he was a flaming advocate of liberty, with singular advantages over all other pleaders. Mr. Garrison was not noted as a speaker; yet his tongue was his pen. Mr. Phillips was not much given to the pen, his pen was his tongue, and no other like speaker has ever graced our history. I do not undertake to say that he surpassed all others. He had an intense individuality, and that intense individuality ranked him among the noblest orators that have ever been born to this continent, or I may say to our mother land. He adopted in full the tenets of Garrison, which were excessively disagreeable to the whole public mind. The ground which he took was that which Garrison took. Seeing that the conscience of the North was smothered and mute by reason of supposed obligations to the compromises of the Constitution, Garrison declared that the compromises of the Constitution were covenants with hell, and that no man was bound to observe them. This extreme ground Mr. Phillips also took—immediate, unconditional, universal emancipation at any cost whatsoever. That was Garrisonism; that was Wendell Phillipsism; and it would seem as though the Lord rather leaned that way too.

I shall not discuss the merits of Mr. Garrison nor of Mr. Phillips in every direction. I shall say that while the duty of immediate emancipation without conditions was unquestionably the right ground, yet in the providence of God even that could not be brought to pass except through the mediation of very many events. It is a remarkable thing that Mr. Phillips and Mr. Garrison both renounced the Union and denounced the Union in the hope of destroying slavery; whereas the providence of God protected the love of the Union when it was assailed by the South, and made the love of the Union the enthusiasm that carried the great war of emancipation through. It was the very antithesis of the ground which they took. Like John Brown, Mr. Garrison; like John Brown, Mr. Phillips; of a heroic spirit, seeking the great end nobly, but by measures not well adapted to directly secure the end.

Little by little the controversy spread. I shall not trace it. I am giving you simply the atmosphere in which Mr. Phillips sprang into being and into power. His career was a career of thirty or forty years of undiminished eagerness. He never quailed nor flinched, nor did he ever at any time go back one step, or turn in the slightest degree to the right or left. He gloried in his cause, and in that particular aspect of it which had selected him.

He stood on this platform. It is a part of the sweet and pleasant memories of my comparative youth here, that when the mob refused to let him speak in the Broadway Tabernacle before it was moved uptown—the old Tabernacle—William A. Hall, now dead, a fervent friend and abolitionist, had secured the Graham Institute, on Washington Street, in Brooklyn, wherein to hold a meeting where Mr. Phillips should be heard. I had agreed to pray at the opening of the meeting. On the morning of the day on which it was to have taken place, I was visited by the committee of that Institute (excellent gentlemen, whose feelings will not be hurt, because they are all now ashamed of it; they are in heaven), who said that in consequence of the great peril that attended a meeting at the Institute, they had withdrawn the liberty to use it, and paid back the money, and that they called simply to say that it was out of no disrespect to me, but from fidelity to their supposed trust. Well, it was a bitter thing. If there is anything on earth that I am sensitive to, it is the withdrawing of the liberty of speech and thought. Henry C. Bowen, who certainly has done some good things in his lifetime, said to me, "You can have Plymouth Church if you want it." "How?" "It is the rule of the church trustees that the church may be let by a majority vote when we are convened; but if we are not convened, then every trustee must give his assent in writing. If you choose to make it a personal matter, and go to every trustee, you can have it." He meanwhile undertook, with Mr. Hall, to put new placards over the old ones, notifying men, quietly, that the meeting was to be held here, and distributed thousands and tens of thousands of hand-bills at the ferries. No task was ever more welcome. I went to the trustees man by man. The majority of them very cheerfully accorded the permission. One or two of them were disposed to decline and withhold it. I made it a matter of personal friendship. "You and I will break if you don't give me this permission;" and they signed. So the meeting glided from the Graham Institute to this house. A great audience assembled. We had detectives in disguise, and every arrangement made to handle the subject in a practical form if the crowd should undertake to molest us. The Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs consented to come and pray; for Mr. Wendell Phillips was by marriage a near and intimate friend and relation of his. The reporters were here—when were they ever not? A gentleman was called to preside over the meeting who had been known to be an abolitionist almost from his cradle; but he was personally a timid man, though morally courageous. When I put the sense of the meeting that he should preside, he got up and was so scared that he could not be heard. He muttered that he thought some other man might have been chosen. I called him by name and said, "You are selected to preside, sir." He got up again—"Will you be kind enough to come up here and preside, sir?" But for fear that he would be worse bombarded by not doing it than he would by doing it, he came up. Prayer was uttered. An explanatory statement was made. Mr. Phillips began his lecture; and you may depend upon it by this time the lion was in him, and he went careering on. His views were extreme, he made them extravagant. I remember at one point,—for he was a man without bluster; serene, self-poised, never disturbed in the least,—he made an affirmation that was very bitter, and a cry arose over the whole congregation. He stood still, with a cold, bitter smile on his face and look in his eye, and waited till they subsided, when he repeated it with more emphasis. Again the roar went through. He waited, and repeated it if possible more intensely; and he beat them down with that one sentence, until they were still and let him go on.

The power to discern right amid all the wrappings of interest and all the seductions of ambition was singularly his. To choose the lowly for their sake; to abandon all favor, all power, all comfort, all ambition, all greatness—that was his genius and glory. He confronted the spirit of the nation and of the age. I had almost said, he set himself against nature, as if he had been a decree of God overriding all these other insuperable obstacles. That was his function. Mr. Phillips was not called to be a universal orator any more than he was a universal thinker. In literature and in history he was widely read; in person most elegant; in manners most accomplished; gentle as a babe; sweet as a new-blown rose; in voice, clear and silvery. He was not a man of tempests; he was not an orchestra of a hundred instruments; he was not an organ, mighty and complex. The nation slept, and God wanted a trumpet, sharp, far-sounding, narrow and intense; and that was Mr. Phillips. The long roll is not particularly agreeable in music or in times of peace, but it is better than flutes or harps when men are in a great battle, or are on the point of it.

His eloquence was penetrating and alarming. He did not flow as a mighty gulf stream; he did not dash upon the continent as the ocean does; he was not a mighty rushing river. His eloquence was a flight of arrows, sentence after sentence, polished, and most of them burning. He shot them one after the other, and where they struck they slew; always elegant, always awful. I think scorn in him was as fine as I ever knew it in any human being. He had that sublime sanctuary in his pride that made him almost insensitive to what would by other men be considered obloquy. It was as if he said every day, in himself, "I am not what they are firing at. I am not there, and I am not that. It is not against me. I am infinitely superior to what they think me to be. They do not know me." It was quiet and unpretentious, but it was there. Conscience and pride were the two concurrent elements of his nature.

He lived to see the slave emancipated, but not by moral means. He lived to see the sword cut the fetter. After this had taken place he was too young to retire, though too old to gather laurels of literature or to seek professional honors. The impulse of humanity was not at all abated. His soul still flowed on for the great under masses of mankind,though like the Nile it split up into diverse mouths, and not all of them were navigable.

After a long and stormy life his sun went down in glory. All the English-speaking people on the globe have written among the names that shall never die, the name of that scoffed, detested, mob-beaten Wendell Phillips. Boston, that persecuted and would have slain him, is now exceedingly busy in building his tomb and rearing his statue. The men that would not defile their lips with his name are to-day thanking God that he lived.

He has taught a lesson that the young will do well to take heed to—the lesson that the most splendid gifts and opportunities and ambitions may be best used for the dumb and the lowly. His whole life is a rebuke to the idea that we are to climb to greatness by climbing up on the backs of great men; that we are to gain strength by running with the currents of life; that we can from without add anything to the great within that constitutes man. He poured out the precious ointment of his soul upon the feet of that diffusive Jesus who suffers here in his poor and despised ones. He has taught the young ambitions too—that the way to glory is the way, oftentimes, of adhesion simply to principle; and that popularity and unpopularity are not things to be known or considered. Do right and rejoice. If to do right will bring you into trouble, rejoice that you are counted worthy to suffer with God and the providences of God in this world.

He belongs to the race of giants, not simply because he was in and of himself a great soul, but because he bathed in the providence of God, and came forth scarcely less than a god; because he gave himself to the work of God upon earth, and inherited thereby, or had reflected upon him, some of the majesty of his master. When pigmies are all dead, the noble countenance of Wendell Phillips will still look forth, radiant as a rising sun—a sun that will never set. He has become to us a lesson, his death an example, his whole history an encouragement to manhood—to heroic manhood.

PRAYER BEFORE THE SERMON.

We come into thy presence, our Father, to give thanks. Our sorrows are gone. They came like the clouds and like the rain, and, like the rain, they are at the root, giving birth in us to things fair and fruitful. When we look back upon our lives and see how we deplored that which now seems beneficent, we are filled with the sense of our own unreasoning folly, and of our sins, and are inspired to call out, "Thy will be done, not ours." Be thou thought for us. Thou that art Love, let the summer spread abroad over us, that in thy love all things may grow, for thy fear and the terror of thy law are as Winter, in which we shiver and tremble, but never grow. Give to us, then, all-nourishing love. Give to us the consciousness of thine own faithfulness, that in thee there may be to our thought all that is dear and beautiful in human love, and transcendently more. For how often do love and weakness go together! but they are eternally strong. How often do love and self-deception march together! but thou knowest all things, and art never deceived. How often does love itself faint and grow weary and die! but thou that art from eternity art invariable; there is with thee no shadow of turning. Our smallness doth not lead thee to despise us. Our folly and weakness do not disgust thee. Often our baseness thou dost despise, as a parent; but still thou dost not give us up, and wilt not until thou hast wrought out in us the lines and lineaments of thine own self.

Eternal Father and Lover, bring us into the full beatitude of faith in thee, because thou art Father and Lover; and may we lean upon thee, and catch the inspiration of thy nobleness, and work our way together with thee up toward the blessed states in which thou dost dwell. If there are those that are beclouded, in whose heaven there is no sun of righteousness, whose nights have no stars, thou that out of chaos didst evolve order and progression, bring forth light to those that are in darkness; and may great light arise to them. Thou that hast compassion evermore upon the captive, look upon those that are bound hand and foot in evil, and have compassion upon them. If any are seeking to break through their adversaries, and the temptations that surround them on every hand, Lord, be on their side, and let them know that thou art, that they may take courage, and that they may hope, not in their own strength and skill, but in the fidelity of their God.

We pray that thus we may find thee a Tower; and when the battle is too strong for us, may we run in unto thee, the Shadow of a great rock in a weary land, when the heat hath spent itself upon us, that we may find at last refreshment and rest. Be all in all; and so may we live in the fullness of a holy trust and joy that we shall be prepared, when we live again and really live, to enter into thy thought, thy sympathy and thy works.

Look, we pray thee, upon all the households of this great congregation. Bring to every family, peace; health, if there be sickness; strength, if there be weakness; guidance, if there be perplexity. All that they need may they find in thee, giving thanks from day to day. We pray that thy blessing may rest upon all thy servants that are inspired to preach Christ, whether in the household, by the way, in our schools, or in all the neighborhoods where their zeal and kindness carries them. May they be permitted to discern the glory of thy face, and see thee as in a perpetual transfiguration; and as thou wert lifted up, and thy head shone against the sky, while thy feet were not far from the earth, thus may our Christ be to us, so near to the earth, that at least we may touch his feet, and so near to heaven that we may discern something of the upper glory.

We pray, O Lord, that thou wilt give to us tranquillity and rest, not as those that seek their rest in their own perfectness, or in their outward conditions, but as those that rest in God. Be God enough to us to be our consolation in every time of affliction. Be thou our Leader, that we may be willing to do and love to do the things that God would have us do. May we not too much hear the voices of men; may we be apt to hear the silent voice of God speaking to the conscience within us; and knowing thy will may we dismiss all anxiety, nor care whether men hate, or whether they disregard; whether they curse or whether they bless.

May we rest in the Lord, and be strong in the Lord, and finally live in the Lord; and to thy name shall be the praise, Father, Son, and Spirit. Amen.

DO YOU KNOW

That you can get a year's subscription to the Century Magazine for $1.98; to Harper's Monthly for $1.57; to Harper's Bazar and Harper's Weekly for $1.98 each; to the Atlantic for $1.98; to St. Nicholas for $1.27; to The Youth's Companion for 47 cents; to the New York Weekly Tribune for seven cents—and to any other periodical in the world at equally astonishing discounts from the regular prices? These rates are actually given to all subscribers to the above, if taken at the same time with THE CONTINENT [Judge Tourgee's Weekly Magazine]. The following list gives a few of the combinations we make:

COMBINATION SUBSCRIPTION RATES.	Regular Rate.	By Single Copies	Our Price for the Two.
The Continent ($4) and Plymouth Pulpit ($2)	$6.00	$8.84	$4.38
The Continent, $4, and The Century, $4,	8.00	9.40	5.98
The Continent, $4, and Harper's Magazine, $4,	8.00	9.40	5.57
The Continent, $4, and Harper's Bazar, $4,	8.00	10.40	5.98
The Continent, $4, and Harper's Weekly, $4,	8.00	10.40	5.98
The Continent, $4, and Atlantic Monthly, $4,	8.00	9.40	5.97
The Continent, $4, and Army and Navy Journal, $6,	10.00	11.20	8.69
The Continent, $4, and North American Review, $5,	9.00	1.20	6.90
The Continent, $4, and Forest and Stream, $4,	8.00	10 40	5.89
The Continent, $4, and The Nation, $3,	7.00	10.40	5.55
The Continent, $4, and The Critic, $3,	7 00	10.40	5.48
The Continent, $4, and Lippincott's Magazine, $3,	7.00	8.20	5.21
The Continent, $4, and Golden Days, $3,	7.00	——	5.19
The Continent, $4, and Congregationalist, $3,	7.00	——	5.27
The Continent, $4, and Christian Union, $3,	7.00	——	4.99
The Continent, $4, and Zion's Herald, $2.50,	6.50	——	4.77
The Continent, $4, and St. Nicholas, $3,	7.00	8.20	5.27
The Continent, $4, and New York Semi-Weekly Tribune, $3,	7.00	——	5.00
The Continent, $4, and New York Weekly Tribune, $2,	6.00	——	4.07
The Continent, $4, and Art Interchange, $2,	6.00	7.70	4.53
The Continent, $4, and Youth's Companion, $1.75,	5.75	——	4.47
The Continent, $4, and Scientific American, $3.20,	7.20	10.40	5.47
The Continent, $4, and Phrenological Journal, $2,	6.00	8.20	4.27

A HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS

Are expended every year by the American people for their periodical literature, with very little idea of economy in the transaction, such as business wisdom dictates in the wholesale purchase of other commodities. The above offers give the individual purchaser the advantages of wholesale rates, with no agents or middlemen of any kind—the subscriber getting the whole advantage. The list given above is only an example of what we are prepared to offer to all who include THE CONTINENT in their lists. If you are going to take any of the periodicals named, or any others, submit your list for our estimate. It will defy competition.

As to THE CONTINENT itself, the New York Observer says: "It ranks in literary merit and artistic quality with the best and oldest-established magazines in the country;" and the poet Whittier said, in renewing his subscription: "It has more than fulfilled its promises; I cannot do without it." THE CONTINENT has been lavish of promises, and has fulfilled every one. It will fulfill these. We are glad to answer inquiries. Let us know what you want. Specimen copy sent on application.

Subscriptions to THE CONTINENT and other periodicals may begin with any number of either. Be sure and state when you want each to begin. Remit by draft or money order. The NEW POSTAL NOTES are just out, and will be found very convenient in remitting odd sums of money. The above figures are "odd" enough; that is because they are figured down to the lowest cent for your advantage.

SUBSCRIBE NOW!

ADDRESS:

THE CONTINENT, 36 South Eleventh Street,

PHILADELPHIA.

CHOICE BOOKS.

Marion Harland's New Story. One of the most delightful productions of this favorite author is her new book, Judith: A Chronicle of Old Virginia, drawn from sunny memories of the writer's childhood amid the plantation life of distant days "before the war"—a phase of American life now gone forever, except as it survives in romance and history. Illustrated with character drawings by Frost and Shepard. [Our Continent Library, No. 5.] $1.50.

A Sylvan City. Quaint and Picturesque Corners in Philadelphia, Old and New. A beautifully illustrated volume, giving a bright, gossipy, anecdotal account of the numerous historic localities, points of beauty and interest, and notable people and institutions of that peculiar city. [Our Continent Library, No. 4.] $2.00.

Henry Ward Beecher. A new volume of his Sermons from Plymouth Pulpit, in Vellum Cloth, $1.50; and a new edition of the famous Life Thoughts, gathered from his extemporaneous discourses by a member of his congregation. Attractively bound. $1.25. The weekly pamphlet, Plymouth Pulpit, 7 cents per copy, $2 per annum.

Tourgee's Historical Novels. An extraordinary line of books, giving a most graphic presentation of the life of a generation of Americans. Hot Plowshares, the rise of the antislavery sentiment as a force, $1.50; A Royal Gentleman, master and slave, $2.00; Figs and Thistles, the war, $1.50; A Fool's Errand, the era of reconstruction, $1.00; Bricks without Straw, the bondage of the freedmen, $1.50. As novels, these books are of surpassing interest and power; as history, of recognized value.

A Concise History of the American People. By JACOB HARRIS PATTON, A.M. From the discoveries of the continent to President Arthur's Administration. Complete in 2 vols. 8vo. Portraits and Maps.

"Professor PATTON * * * is a successful teacher of long experience, and he has thorough command of his material. * * * He is at home, not only in the successive events of our history, but in the principles and ideas which have been at the roots of our political development. * * * We regard the book as, on the whole, the most valuable popular manual of American history now in the market. It is a book to be placed in the hands of young people * * * and students and readers of all kinds will find it an invaluable hand-book for reference."—The Presbyterian Review.

☞ An admirable gift for the intelligent youth or maiden, especially for college students. $3.00 per volume. Send for descriptive circular.

Bryant's Family Library of Poetry and Song. The largest, completest, and best of the poetical collections, containing 2,000 poems from 700 authors. Together with Classified Poetical Quotations and ample Indexes; Mr. Bryant's introductory essay—"Poets and Poetry of the English Language," and Gen. WILSON'S "Memoir of Bryant." Illustrated with steel portrait of Bryant, engravings of Homes of American Poets, Manuscript Fac-similes, etc., etc Beautiful Holiday Bindings.

NOW READY

A Circuit of the Continent;

ACCOUNT OF A TRIP TO THE WEST AND SOUTH,

BY

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

Being his Thanksgiving Day Discourse, at Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, Thursday, Nov. 29, 1883; describing his Tour through thirty States and Territories, giving especially his ideas of the Wheat Regions of the Northwest, the Lumber Country of Washington and Oregon, California, Utah and the Mormons, Texas and the South.

A neat Pamphlet, with recent portrait of MR. BEECHER.

Sold by Booksellers and Newsdealers.

Price, - - - - Ten Cents.

IT WILL BE MAILED FREE TO EVERY NEW OR RENEWING ANNUAL SUBSCRIBER TO "PLYMOUTH PULPIT."

Any present Subscriber can have a single copy by sending the Publisher a 5-cent postage stamp—taking pains to state in the letter that he is a Subscriber.

COPIES FOR DISTRIBUTION WILL BE FURNISHED AT SPECIAL RATES ON APPLICATION.

FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT,

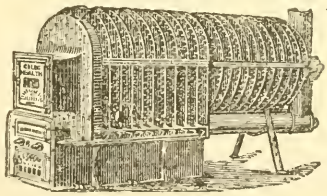
27 Park Place, New York.

THE BEST HEATERS IN THE WORLD.

GOLD'S PATENT HEATERS,

THE PERFECTION OF HOUSE WARMING.

Gold's Patent
"HEALTH,"
"TUBULAR,"
"HYGEIAN"
AND
"PERFECT"
HEATERS.



Gold's Patent "Health" Heater.

The only Heaters that produce Pure, Healthful, pleasant, Moist, Warmed Air without Evaporation of Water.

Send for Illustrated Descriptive Catalogue containing References & Testimonials to

GOLD'S HEATER MANUFACTURING CO.,

Office and Manufactory: 624 to 642 EAST 14th ST. } NEW YORK. { Salesroom: 237 WATER ST.

Sole manufacturers, also, of the celebrated Keyser "Peace-Maker" Heaters.

A COOK'S TRIP!

Not to Europe but to Health and Happiness at Home.

Read this, and try it!

HELEN CAMPBELL'S

NEW COOK BOOK

Has taken housekeepers and critics by storm. Look at one or two of these opinions about it, and see how it fills the place.

"There is room for another cook-book, and this is the one there is room for."—Boston Home Journal.

"Once read this book and you will purchase it, and you will never regret the cost. . . No impossible dishes find a place, but just such ones as are used in daily cooking by rich and poor."—Detroit Chronicle.

"More than a cook-book, and nothing less than a treatise on the art of sound living."—Atlantic Monthly, Boston.

"To utilize to the best advantage the food resources of whatever spot, is the problem Helen Campbell has solved."—Harper's Monthly, N. Y.

"This is the most complete 'cook-book' we have seen."—Hall's Journal of Health.

This Book is very properly called

The Easiest Way in Housekeeping & Cooking

The author believing that the best way is the easiest. The special excellence is that the book is practical, its directions exact and plain, and everything given in full, precise detail—so that any one can understand and follow it.

HOW TO GET IT.

We will send a copy, bound in nut-brown cloth, by mail, postpaid, on the receipt of One Dollar. And, what is more, if after having it one week you conclude that you do not want it, you may return it to us by mail, notifying us at the same time by letter of your sending it and of your address and we will return you the Dollar!

Is not that a "Trial Trip" worth taking? Send on your dollar and get this admirable book. It treats of Drainage, Water Supply, Utensils, and every matter in Household Science, aiming at good health and good living at small expense.

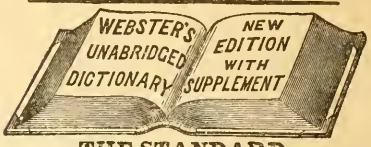
ADAPTED TO TOWN, VILLAGE AND COUNTRY.

Book mailed on receipt of $1, or full Descriptive Circular sent on application.

FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT,
27 Park Place, New York City.

WEBSTER'S UNABRIDGED

In Sheep, Russia and Turkey Bindings.



THE STANDARD.

GET Webster—it has 118,000 Words, a New Biographical Dictionary and 3000 Engravings.

THE Standard in the Gov't Printing Office. 32,000 copies in Public Schools. Sale 20 to 1 of any other series.

BEST HOLIDAY GIFT

Always acceptable to Pastor, Parent, Teacher, Child or Friend; for Holiday, Birthday, Wedding, or any other occasion.

"A LIBRARY IN ITSELF."

The latest edition, in the quantity of matter it contains, is believed to be the largest volume published. It has 3000 more Words in its vocabulary than are found in any other Am. Dict'y, and nearly 3 times the number of Engravings.

G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

MATERNITY.

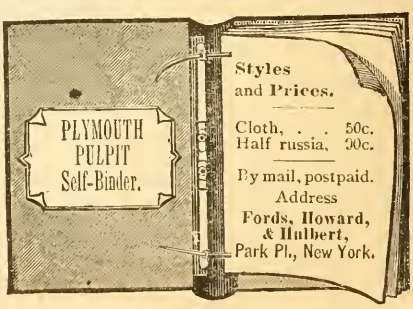
A Book for Mothers, Teachers, Nurses and all who have charge of the Physical, Mental and Moral Training of Infants and Children.

It deals skilfully, sensibly, and delicately with the perplexities of married life, treating of the needs, dangers, and alleviations of the duties of Maternity, and giving extended, detailed instructions for the care and medical treatment of Infants and Children. By TULLIO S. VERDI, A. M., M.D., for many years practicing physician, and President of Board of Health, Washington, D. C. Seventh edition. 1 vol., 12mo, $2.

For Sale by Booksellers, or mailed postpaid on receipt of price. $2, by

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT, 27 Park Place, New York.



BANNERS.

SEND FOR CIRCULAR TO

J. & R. LAMB,

59 Carmine Street, New York.

SPENCERIAN PENS

These famous Steel Pens combine the essential qualities of Elasticity, Durability and real Swan Quill action, and are suited to all styles of writing. For sale everywhere.

Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., N. Y.

GOLD PENS.

PENCILS, HOLDERS, CASES, Etc.

THE CALLI-GRAPHIC PEN.

A GOLD PEN and RUBBER HOLDER, containing ink for several days' writing. Can be carried in the pocket. Always ready for use. A luxury for persons who care to preserve their individuality in writing.

MABIE, TODD & BARD,
Cor. Nassau & Liberty Sts., New York

Send for Price List.

OUR GOODS ARE SOLD BY FIRST CLASS DEALERS

A GREAT SUCCESS.

The Decorator and Furnisher.

The new illustrated Art Journal and Guide in all matters of ART and Taste in the furnishing and decorating of the interior of the house. Reading Matter by well-known authors, and Beautiful Designs for Furniture, Frescoes, Screens, Draperies, Furnished Rooms, Wall-Painting, Stained Glass, Carpets, Ceramics with Hints and Suggestions for all characters of HOME DECORATION.

"Certainly handsomer than most publications."—Art Amateur.

"Filled with excellent reading matter for all interested in decorations."—Art Interchange.

"In a position to lend to its English contemporaries quite as much as it borrows."—The Artist (London,)

Subscription, $4 per annum; single copies, 35 cents.

TRIAL SUBSCRIPTION FOR THREE MONTHS, ONE DOLLAR.

The Decorator & Furnisher,

P. O. Box 1543. 231 BROADWAY, N. Y.

The Preacher and His Sermon;

A TREATISE ON HOMILETICS.

BY REV. J. W. ETTER, B. D.

A New Standard Work on Preaching. The range of topics treated is wider than is usually discussed in books of its class. In addition to the discussion of Homiletics proper, it gives special attention to the qualifications of the preacher, including his general and special preparation for his work, Preaching to Children, Revival Sermons, Out-door Sermons, Funeral Sermons, Illustrated Sermons, Lay Preaching, and Bible-readings. Its arrangement is systematic, its treatment is comprehensive, and its style is marked by clearness, freshness, and evangelical earnestness.

"The best book will be that which tells most plainly and truly those things which are essential for correct training. Judging by this principle, we give Mr. Etter's volume a very high place."—Sunday-school Times.

Issued in elegant style. 581 pages, 8vo., cloth. Price, $2.25.

Rev. W. J. SHUEY, Publisher, Dayton, O.

THE CHRISTIAN UNION, $3.
PLYMOUTH PULPIT, $2.

Separately, cost $5; together, cost $4.

Address,

Fords, Howard & Hulbert,
27 Park Place, New York

A. THOMPSON,

Ladies'

Restaurant and Confectionery

30 Clinton Street,

Bet. Pierrepont and Fulton. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

WEDDING RECEPTIONS,

Evening Parties, Dinners, Sociables, Etc.

Furnished with a Choice Variety of Made Dishes, Truffled Turkey, Jellied Game, Game Pates, Croquettes, Oysters, Etc.

Ice Creams, Ices, Charlotte de Russe, Mottoes, Bridal and Fancy Cakes, Imported Glace Fruits, Wine and Fruit Jellies, Flowers, Etc., on the most reasonable terms.

Also, Entire Outfits of Decorated China, Silver, Glass, and Table Linen.

☞ White or Colored Waiters sent as desired.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
0 011 899 583 1

BRAIN AND N

FROM THE NERVE-GIVING PRINCIPLES OF

VITALIZED PHOSPHITES.—Restores the e ation ; relieves lassitude and neuralgia ; refreshes the nerves ti eness and strengthens a failing memory. It aids wonderfu s and children. Under its use the teeth come easier, the bone quires more readily and rests and sleeps more sweetly. An ill-f evish. It gives a more intellectual and happier childhood. exhaustion which impels to the use of alcoholic beverag s and suffering which has baffled the efforts of religion and mora ty and For sale by Druggists, or mail, $1. label.

F. CROSBY & CO., 664 & 666 6th Ave., New York.

RUSSIAN, ROMAN, ELECTRIC and

TURKISH BATHS,

No. 34 Clinton Street, Brooklyn.

Acknowledged by travelers to be one of the most complete and perfectly appointed Bathing Establishments in any country.

Turkish or Hot Air and Russian Vapor Baths given separately or combined—a great improvement in bathing.

Pure Spring Water, 100 gallons per minute. Elegant Swimming Baths. Perfect Ventilation. Luxurious appointments. Careful attention. Dry hand rubbing after the bath. Refreshments. Smoking-room. First-class Chiropodist, Manicure and Barber.

SULPHUR BATHS.

This department is entirely separate and strictly private. Great care is taken to adapt these powerful remedial agents to individual cases. Careful attention is given to cleanliness and comfort, and with a thorough system of ventilation the baths are entirely free from all unpleasant odors.

☞ Massage, Electric Treatment, Roman Baths, and Medical Rubbing given at private residences.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, BIRTH-MARKS, MOLES, WARTS, Etc., PERMANENTLY REMOVED BY GALVANIC ELECTRICITY.

This is a perfectly safe and reliable method.

ELECTRICITY,

Galvanic, Faradic, Static, and Galvano-Magnetic.

The most complete apparatus, the best modes of application and the most skillful adaptation of treatment to each individual case for the RELIEF AND CURE OF ALL NERVOUS AFFECTIONS, RHEUMATISM AND OTHER FORMS OF CHRONIC DISEASE.

Open Day and Evening for Ladies and Gentlemen.

A. L. WOOD, M. D., Proprietor.

For Studying the present Quarter's S. S. Lessons,

EVERY ONE SHOULD HAVE THE

American Version of the Revised New Testament.

With the Readings and Renderings preferred by the American Committee of Revision, Incorporated into the text by ROSWELL D. HITCHCOCK, D.D., President of the Union Theological Seminary, New York.

"It represents the best, the oldest, and the purest Greek text of the New Testament at present attainable, by consent of the most competent Christian scholars. . . . Furthermore, this American Version is the most accurate English rendering in existence of that Greek text."—N. Y. Christian Intelligencer.

"Great pains have evidently been taken to make it accurate. . . . The typographical execution is admirable."—DR. EZRA ABBOT, of the Am. Committee of Revision.

Long Primer, Crown 8vo, Cloth, Red Edges, $1. Also, in Morocco Grained Leather, Gilt Edges, $1.75; Full Turkey Morocco, Gilt Edges, $3.25.

☞ Mailed post-paid on receipt of price. To Clergymen or Students at 20 per cent. discount.

FORDS, HOWARD, & HULBERT, Publishers, 27 Park Place, New York.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
0 011 899 583 1